

Comfort by Design

Making homes more comfortable every day.

Homes built with Rheia's revolutionary air distribution system balance the air in every room of your house, creating a living environment that feels more comfortable—by design.

Why we chose the Rheia system

In our commitment to deliver homes that are not only beautifully designed but also embody the highest standards of comfort and sustainability, we meticulously selected the Rheia Air Distribution System over traditional HVAC options. Our choice is grounded in a vision that sees beyond the conventional, aiming for innovation that impacts both our homeowners and the environment positively.

Energy efficiency through design

Traditional HVAC systems often struggle with inefficiencies that lead to wasted energy and higher utility bills. The Rheia system, with its advanced technology, drastically reduces energy consumption, making it a more sustainable choice that aligns with our commitment to green building practices.

Improved comfort through innovation

Traditional HVAC systems often struggle with inefficiencies that lead to wasted energy and higher utility bills. The Rheia system, with its advanced technology, drastically reduces energy consumption, making it a more sustainable choice that aligns with our commitment to green building practices.

Future-Proof Homes

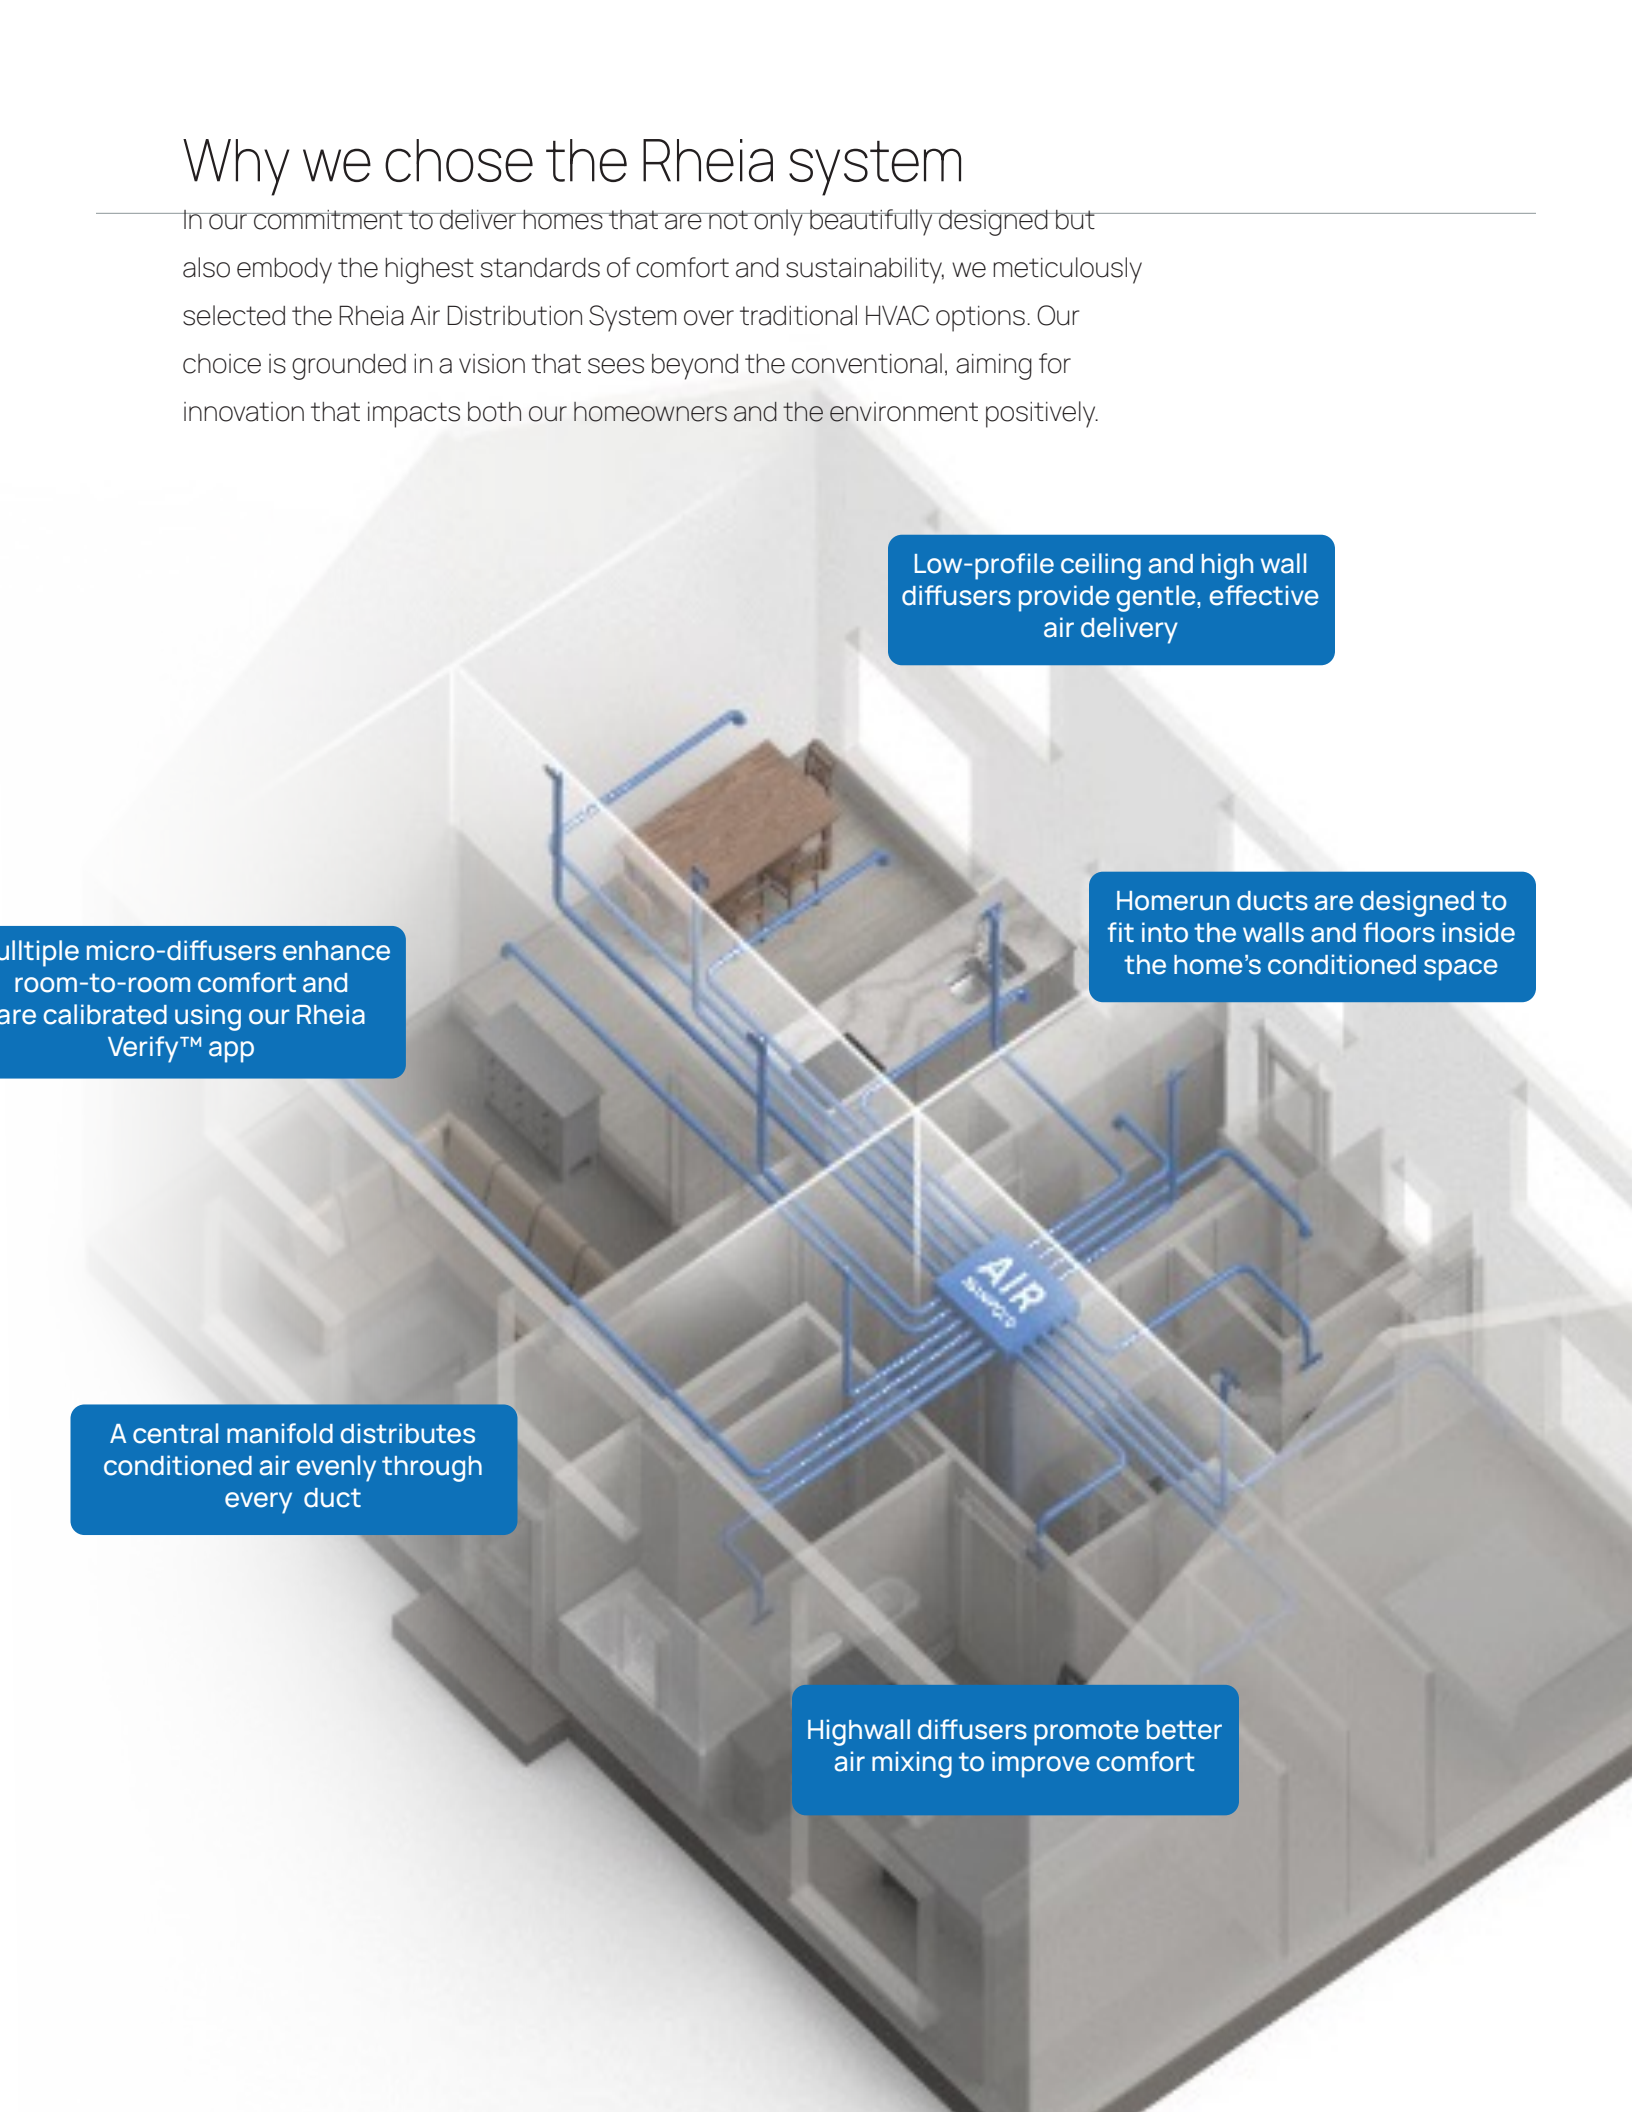

In choosing Rheia, we're not just thinking about today but also about the future. As energy standards become stricter and environmental concerns grow, Rheia-equipped homes are already ahead, designed to meet and exceed future regulations and expectations.

A reflection of our values

Our selection of the Rheia Air Distribution System is a testament to our values of innovation, quality, and sustainability. It reflects our dedication to providing homes that offer more than just shelter but a smart, efficient, and comfortable living space that stands the test of time. By choosing Rheia, we are ensuring that our homes are a beacon of modern living, designed for those who seek a better, greener, and more efficient way to live.

Why we chose the Rheia system

In our commitment to deliver homes that are not only beautifully designed but also embody the highest standards of comfort and sustainability, we meticulously selected the Rheia Air Distribution System over traditional HVAC options. Our choice is grounded in a vision that sees beyond the conventional, aiming for innovation that impacts both our homeowners and the environment positively.

Low-profile ceiling and high wall diffusers provide gentle, effective air delivery

Homerun ducts are designed to fit into the walls and floors inside the home's conditioned space

Multiple micro-diffusers enhance room-to-room comfort and are calibrated using our Rheia Verify™ app

A central manifold distributes conditioned air evenly through every duct

Highwall diffusers promote better air mixing to improve comfort

We care about what you don't see

Most of the Rheia system is behind your walls hidden from view, but our attention to detail means you can have peace of mind that your comfort was our top priority.

Rheia components are meticulously engineered to maximize efficiency and ensure a perfect connection everytime making the installation process clean and precise.

Rheia homes are balanced using an app-based process that confirms the system is performing to the design, resulting in even temperatures throughout the home—all but eliminating hot and cold spots.

What you can see is clean, sleek, and elegantly simple.

We believe the HVAC system should be neither seen nor heard. We designed our micro diffusers to disappear from view, letting you emphasize the personal touches you made to your home. No one wants to hear their HVAC system, so we designed Rheia to be quiet as a whisper.

Join the future of comfortable living

We invite you to experience the difference with the Rheia Air Distribution System. Welcome you to a world where comfort, efficiency, and sustainability meet. Let us show you why choosing Rheia-equipped homes is the best decision for you and your family.

For More Information

rheiacomfort.com/homeowner

Rheia LLC

4636 S 35th Street

Phoenix

AZ 85040